What are the benefits of living in Malta, as an individual and as a business leader?

Living in Malta has been an incredible experience for me, both personally and professionally. On a personal level, I love the Mediterranean lifestyle – the sunny days, the sea and the welcoming community. From a business perspective, Malta is a strategic gem in the heart of the Mediterranean, offering a business-friendly environment that supports growth and innovation. It's a place where a strong vision, combined with hard work, can truly thrive. The close-knit community in Malta makes it easier to connect with people, collaborate and build something meaningful.

Your story is quite inspirational, having arrived as a young man and initially working as a manual labourer in the construction sector before taking the plunge and starting eeatwell. How conducive is Malta, socially and economically, to such a journey?

My journey in Malta started with hard work and humble beginnings. However, after my arrival, I found a community that truly values ambition and determination. There's this can-do spirit here – a belief that if you put in the effort, you can make things happen. Economically, Malta may be small, but it's agile and open to new ideas. There's a growing appetite for healthier, more sustainable living, which aligns perfectly with eeatwell's mission. The tight-knit community makes it easy to connect with like-minded people who believe in your vision. Malta is a place where doors will open if you're ready to walk through them.

As eeatwell has grown, you have become familiar with the business landscapes of other countries. In light of this, what would you say are the pros and cons of investing in Malta?

Investing in Malta comes with its fair share of positives. You've got a strategic location, a competitive tax system and a government that wants to see businesses succeed. There's also a great sense of community here – people support each other, and the workforce is skilled, multilingual and adaptable. On the downside, Malta's size can be somewhat limiting and logistics can sometimes be tricky with imports. However, Malta's connectivity to Europe and beyond turns these challenges into opportunities. At the end of the day, it's all about seeing the bigger picture and leveraging Malta's strategic position to unlock wider opportunities.

"There's this can-do spirit here – a belief that if you put in the effort, you can make things happen."

What advice would you give those who are considering making Malta their home?

Malta is a great place to call home, whether for business or lifestyle. My advice? Dive right in. Embrace the culture, connect with locals, get involved, and make the most of the island's networking opportunities. The island might be small but that's actually a big advantage – you can easily build relationships and find your community. There's a lot to discover here! Enjoy the local food and the beautiful nature, and soak up the endless summer days. If you come with an open heart, Malta has a lot to offer.

Redefining Malta's Value Proposition as a Financial Jurisdiction

FJVA CEO Adriana Camilleri Vassallo and Head of Tax Advisory Kurt explain why Malta is a jurisdiction of choice for non-EU corporates considering operational expansion and high-net worth individuals seeking diverse investment opportunities.

Amidst ever-changing market dynamics and an unprecedented level of geopolitical uncertainty, businesses and investors are increasingly seeking alternative jurisdictions beyond their home territories to base their operations and safeguard their assets. In today's increasingly interconnected global economy, selecting the most appropriate jurisdiction involves more than a positive tax environment. The jurisdiction must provide a well-rounded, strategic advantage that transcends financial incentives: stability, growth opportunities, robust regulation, and efficiency are some of the other considerations.

Malta, with its prime geographical location (providing a gateway into Southern Europe and access to international maritime routes), growing international outlook, supportive business environment and resilient economy, is wellpositioned to meet this demand. As an EU member country, it also presents an ideal centre for companies looking to benefit from seamless access to the European Single Market.

From a personal perspective, the country can be described as the perfect option for business leaders thinking about moving their lives (and relocating their families) to another country. A rich cultural heritage, welcoming Mediterranean climate of 300 days of sunshine each year, a well-regarded healthcare system, a blooming gastronomic scene, and low crime rates are highly attractive factors.

Established in 1998 by a former Governor of the Central Bank of Malta, Francis J. Vassallo, and his daughter Adriana Camilleri Vassallo, corporate services provider Francis J. Vassallo & Associates Ltd (FVA) lends its expertise to private wealth individuals, Maltese companies and multinationals seeking comprehensive support for their corporate and personal needs. The firm specialises in company structures, family business services (also encompassing foundation and trust administration), residency assistance and advisory services in tax, finance, risk, regulation, and compliance.
